Germany's leading publisher for beekeeping

- 2 high-circulation beekeeping magazines
- target group-specific digital channels

The bee colony –
a highly complex organism.
Real swarm intelligence.
We are always fascinated by the bees, love and understand them and yet are constantly learning. We want to pass on this knowledge: Hobby beekeepers, expert advisors and bee researchers report to us. In this way, we can depict beekeeping
in all its facets and, together with the associations, network our beekeeping community. Using bees and protecting bees – for us this is not a contradiction but a lived experience.
Beekeeping.
Understanding a world.

Varroa resistance

For around three decades, the Varroa mite has been the most significant pest affecting honey bees and is therefore one of the major issues in beekeeping. Every beekeeper has to deal with it and treat their colonies. It is no surprise that efforts have long been underway to breed Varroa-resistant or at least Varroa-tolerant bees. The bienen&natur special edition 2026 describes the state of research, both at scientific institutes and in private initiatives, and provides beekeepers with guidance on when they can expect genuine resistance and how they can already deal with the issue now.

The editorial concept

How do you beekeep correctly? This is a question that even professionals. In the bienen&natur podcast Drone Battle – Two beekeepers, three opinions discuss Boris and Eddie discuss practical beekeeping topics and talk about their moments of happiness with bees.

The podcasters

Boris Bücheler is editor-in-chief of bienen&natur, Edward Obika is a master beekeeper. Both have a beekeeping business on the side, have plenty of experience with bees – and yet and yet they don't always agree.

The podcast listeners

All beekeepers and bee lovers. Boris and Eddie give tips for young beekeepers, but also tell you how you can beekeeping can be continuously improved.
